COUNSEL IN BIG [illegible]MAGE SUIT BEGIN LEGAL BATTLE

Issues For Jury First "Bone of Contention" in Suit of Ware-Kramer Co. vs. American Tobacco Co.---Judge Connor to Decide on Issues Saturday.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, N. C., June 14.—An effort to settle the issues to go to the jury was a "bone of contention" for some time this afternoon in the trial of the damage suit of Ware-Kramer Tobacco Company versus American Tobacco Company, The Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Company and W. M. Carter, counsel for both the plaintiff and defendant having presented to JudgeConnor what they thought ought to constitute the formal issues. The outcome of the contentions and spirited arguments was that Judge Connor took the whole matter under advisement until Saturday.

The plaintiff presented fifteen issues that counsel insisted should go to the jury. Briefly stated, they are the questions of whether the defendant American Tobacco Company is a combination in restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman act; whether the American Tobacco Company entered into contracts, combinations and conspiracies in the manipulation of the tobacco trade in violation of the law; attempt to monopolize the tobacco trade in the States or with foreign nations and combine or conspire with other persons to monopolize the trade; has the Ware-Kramer Co. been endangered by the acts and conduct of the American Tobacco Co. and what amount of damages is the plaintiff entitled to recover. There is a similar series of issues as to the Wells-Whitehead Company with issues as to damages to plaintiff on this score. Then there are issues as to whether W. M. Carter combined or conspired with any other person to monopolize any part of the tobacco trade in the States or with foreign nations and as to whether his conduct endangered the Ware-Kramer Company and what damages were sustained.

There was another legal sparring match by counsel over the question of the admission as evidence of contracts for the sale of snuff to crush competition. The counsel for the plaintiff insisted that the various tobacco products are so co-related under the policy of the trust that influence the merchants in selling them. Judge Connor announced admission of snuff contracts amid the protests of the counsel for the defense that evoked a sharp rapping for order on the part of his honor. There was a similar contest over the admission of contracts of the defendant in Porto Rica, counsel for the plaintiff insisting that every acquirement by the American Tobacco Company was with a view to getting control of the tobacco trade of the whole country. The Porto Rica contracts were also admitted subject to the plaintiff's proving contentions in such way as to make the evidence in question competent. There were various agreements between the American Tobacco Company and other subsidiary corporations offered to show combinations in restraint of independent trade.

In connection with the argument of the issues to be submitted there was an intimation by the court that the suit being brought under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, it was a question whether there could be prosecution in the same suit for common law conspiracy, and this developed the question of whether or not from this viewpoint defendant Carter would be amenable in this suit for conspiracy with the American Tobacco Company to ruin the trade of the plaintiffs in connection with his having secured the position of sales manager for the Ware-Kramer Company, as the latter charges, with the purpose in view of destroying the trade of the plaintiffs. Judge Connor is to pass on all these matters Saturday.

The remainder of the morning session of the court was devoted to reading the depositions of Secretary Wilcox and Treasurer Hicks, of the American Tobacco Company, with a view to show the policy of the American Tobacco Company to dominate the tobacco business and its practice through control of stock in subsidiary corporations to restrain and control business and stifle competition.

WORK OF CLEARING SIDEWALKS OF THE CITY BEGINS

Sergeant Pearce and Patrolman McCuiston were yesterday parading down South Elm street with measuring rod, blazing the way for the removal of all obstructions on the sidewalks and all awnings, signs, etc., seven feet or less above the level of the sidewalks.

As the officers marched down the street they were followed by several and others congregated in front of each place at which the officers stopped, curiosity being at the top notch. All persons whose awnings and signs fell below the seven-foot mark on McCuiston's pole were advised that they would have to take immediate steps to have the awnings and signs removed or raised to the proper height.

But awnings were not the only sidewalk obstructions the officers were looking for. The ordinance regarding sidewalk obstruction states that no obstructions, such as boxes, barrels and merchandise shall remain on the edge of the sidewalk next the curbing, nor next the buildings, unless there shall be a clear space of at least 12 feet from the curb. Of course this applies to Elm street, but the ordinance as applied to other streets is the same, excepting that the clear space will not be so wide as on Elm.

The action of the police is according to the instructions of Commissioner Brown, who is determined that all ordinances shall be enforced so long as they remain on the books of the city. The ordinance was passed by the Board of Aldermen something like two years ago and for a time was enforced, with the exception that the awnings were never measured. However, the practice of piling rubbish and merchandise on the sidewalks was again resumed by degrees.

Auto Smashed Bicycle.

Special to Telegram.

Fayetteville, June 14.—Tonight about 8 o'clock as Dr. G. B. Patterson was riding down Person street in an automobile with his wife, he ran over a man by the name of Jenrigan who was riding in front of him on a bicycle. Patterson was not going at a rapid rate, and called to Jenrigan to look out, but Jenrigan, confused, turned directly in front of the machine. Jenrigan was badly bruised, but physicians say not dangerously. His bicycle was completely demolished.

John Bigelow, "One of the Grandest Old Men Of the Age," and His Pretty Granddaughter.

John Bigelow was born in Ulster county, N. Y., on Nov. 25, 1817. He achieved fame as a litterateur and diplomat and was once United States minister to France. For many years he took an active interest in New York institutions, being a trustee of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art, president of the Lenox, Astor and Tilden foundations, a member of the art commission of the city of New York and an honorary member of the New York chamber of commerce. He was the first president of the New York Law school. At the recent dedication of the New York Public library President Taft referred to him as "one of the grandest old men of the age." This picture of Mr. Bigelow and his granddaughter, Miss Lucy Dodge, was taken on that occasion.

MISTRIAL IN BIG DAMAGE SUIT IN SUPERIOR COURT

All of Superior Court yesterday was taken up with the trial of the case of N. J. Bakke vs. J. R. Williams. The evidence was all concluded about four o'clock. Just before the argument to the jury began a compromise was effected, the defendant agreeing to pay to the plaintiff the sum of $60. The suit was to recover $240 alleged to be due on a contract.

Yesterday the jury in the damage suit of H. F. Starr vs. Southern Bell Telephone Company filed into court and announced that they were unable to agree upon a verdict. Judge Daniels had a juror withdrawn and a mistrial ordered. The suit was to recover damages to the amount of $15,000. It is understood that the jury stood eleven to one in favor of the plaintiff.

ETHEL CONRAD REFUSES TO ACCEPT BAIL

Special to Telegram.

New York, June 14.—At her third arraignment in the West Side Court before Magistrate Freschi, Ethel Conrad, despite the pleadings of her mother and brother, refused to accept bail, which had been reduced to $15,000, unless "Angel" would also bail Lillian Graham, who is charged with the Conrad girl with attempting to murder Hotel Keeper Stokes.

Ethel Conrad's mother says that Lillian Graham hypnotized Ethel. Herman Phillips, representing Miss Conrad against her will, finally withdrew from the case today, the prisoner having declared that Moore and Jordan were her attorneys. Mrs. Conrad had instructed Phillips to remain as counsel for the defendant.

The next hearing of the case will be next Friday afternoon in the office of the district attorney.

LAST DAY FOR LISTING TAXES

Today is the last day for tax-listing, and it is expected that the listers in the court house will do business on "high gear speed" from the opening to the closing hour. For the past few days they have been worked overtime to handle the crowds that have been on hand listing their valuables. Heretofore the books have been open during the month of June, and the date of listing was June 1, but this year the date of listing is on May 1, with the final limit on June 15. The list-takers for the city are present also and one listing serves for both city and county.

HIS SHORTAGE DISCOVERED BANK CASHIER ENDS LIFE

L. V. Hart, of Tarboro, Shot Himself Yesterday After Admitting Shortage---Assistant Cashier's Accounts Short Also And He is Placed in Jail.

Special to Telegram.

Tarboro, N. C., June 14.—After having admitted a shortage in his accounts, Luther Vernon Hart, for a number of years cashier of the Bank of Tarboro, went to his home this morning feigning illness, and placing a 38-caliber pistol over his right ear shot himself in the head, dying from the wound this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

State Bank Examiner J. K. Doughton arrived in the city this morning and after the shortage had been discovered Cashier Hart admitted the fact, saying that the stealing had been going on for a period of seven years. He stated that he was glad that he had been caught up with. Soon afterwards he complained of not feeling well and went to his home, where the rash deed was committed.

Assistant Cashier E. B. Hussey, who was an accomplice of Hart's in the stealing, was committed to jail on account of his part in the shortage, which is estimated at $12,500. However, it is believed that when the matter is fully investigated the shortage will be twice that amount. The bank has been closed and is in the hands of Examiner Doughton, who will apply for a receiver.

Mr. Hart was a member of one of the oldest families of Edgecombe county and was aged 37 years. He is survived by his wife, two sons, and a number of relatives, among whom are three sisters, Mrs. Marvin Nash, of Greensboro; Mrs. Ben Williford, of Rocky Mount; Mrs. John Tyree, of Virginia, and two brothers, Captain Edgar Hart of Wilmington, and Mr. Richard Hart of Heartsease.

The Bank of Tarboro was one of the leading banking institutions of eastern North Carolina, having a capital stock of $25,000 and a surplus of $25,000. John S. Shackkleford was president of the bank, and W. A. Hart, well-known in cotton circles, was one of the largest stockholders.

ONLY POLITICIANS ARE OPPOSED TO RECIPROCITY BILL

So Declared James J. Hill in Interview Last Night—Said But Few Farmers in His Section Were Opposed to Treaty—A Ghost Dance, He Says.

Special to Telegram.

New York, June 14.—James J. Hill in an interview regarding the Root amendment to the reciprocity bill said tonight: "Find out who got Root to introduce his amendment and then maybe you can account for his course."

When Mr. Hill was reminded that the opposition seemed to be so strong among the farmers in his section of the country he impatiently remarked: "It's a ghost dance, that's all it is. The northwestern farmers are not opposed to reciprocity with Canada. President Taft hit the nail squarely on the head when he declared that only a few politicians in our section are against reciprocity. We have overloaded our consumptive capacity and must find an outlet to prolong our prosperity. The situation is so plain and clear, obvious and tempting that I cannot understand how any sane American can hesitate to embrace it."

NEGRO TEACHERS OF THE STATE ARE GATHERED HERE

The thirty-first annual session of the North Carolina Colored Teachers' Association is now being held at the A. & M. College. Tuesday at 8 p. m., after devotions conducted by Principal J. A. McRae, of Ashboro, welcome addresses were delivered by Dr. J. D. Chavis and Edna E. Mitchell on behalf of the College and city schools respectively. The cordial cord running through these addresses made the teachers feel that Greensboro is a good place to visit. Prof. J. H. Branch, who is an excellent speaker, responded to these addresses.

Wednesday morning before the execution of the regular program was begun, the president stated that just 100 years ago Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe was born, hence the beautiful traits in the character of this woman came in for a share of the associations' attention. Among those who made excellent talks were: Professors Dudley, Chavis, Paisley, Branch, and Truman. Able discussions of assigned subjects were then given by Effa Reed, Profs. T. J. Brown, C. A. Johnson and R. W. Brown.

In the afternoon Dr. Fleming lectured to the Summer school and association jointly, as did Prof. C. L. Coon. Dr. Fleming maintained that to be serviceable one must keep his eyes and ears open. The address was an able one. Professor Coon spoke on "Supervision of Negro Schools." "Man's salvation depends upon the kind of instruction he receives. If I were not able to do the work I would not supervise it," said Prof. Coon. He showed that thorough preparation must precede competent instruction and that the State needs teachers who know their job. The influence of this address will doubtless tell for good in years to come.

This in many respects is an interesting meeting. Many negro educators of the State are present. Dr. G. C. Shaw, of Oxford, is president, and Prof. J. W. Paisley, of Winston, secretary.

PAIR FALL INSIDE HIGH STACK

Father Fatally and Son Badly Injured as Scaffold Breaks.

Norristown, Pa., June 14.—Jacob Smith, 46 years old, and his son, Robert, 22 years old, bricklayers, dropped 45 feet this afternoon while working inside a stack over 100 feet high at the Diamond State Fibre Company's plant at Bridgeport. The elder Smith received a compound fracture of the skull and will die. The son had an arm broken in two places and was badly bruised.

The accident was due to the scaffold collapsing. The men were at work on the inside of the stack and had made the necessary repairs to within about forty-five feet of the ground. Young Smith is unable to say what caused the scaffold to collapse.

James Wheeler was at work at the bottom of the stack when the scaffold fell, but escaped injury.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION LABEL GREENSBORO

Exchange speaks of a man ascending high in the air "in a jiffy." Is that a new kind of flying machine?

Many of those who are being advised to "see America first" are entirely willing to do so if somebody will kindly furnish the money.

Evidently, Hendersonville has made great preparations this season for the entertainment of summer visitors from South Carolina. Ten thousand gallons of liquors and wines found in one building up there.

The Democratic House is trying to give the majority of the people the legislation they want and voted for, but the Republican Senate may be able to smash the program. If so, the people will know where to place the blame.

An Exchange has heard that an American citizen has a contract to raise bullfrogs in Japan. Doubtless Captain Hobson will discover in this fact an indication that Japan proposes to jump on this country at the first favorable opportunity.

Durham Herald thinks that one business man—General Carr—would have some show in a Senatorial race against four lawyer-politicians. This should be true in the case of a business man who has talent as a politician, as General Carr appears to have.

The movement for peace in this country seems to be productive of results. It is said there are not enough applicants for cadetships at West Point to fill the vacancies. Time was when the number of young men who desired to attend the military academy was much larger than it was possible to receive. Military life appears to be losing its power to draw young Americans from the pursuits of peace.

It has developed that the late H. O. Havemeyer was the real and only uncrowned king of American finance. Havemeyer managed to control the Sugar Trust, capitalized at $90,000,000, while holding only $200,000 of the stock. This condition of affairs continued until Havemeyer died. Doubtless there are numerous living "high financiers" who would give "something handsome" for the secret which probably perished with Havemeyer.

Forsyth county has employed W. L. Spoon at a salary of $3,600 per year to supervise road improvement and road building in the county. This is an indication of several things. It shows that Forsyth county is determined to have good roads, constructed in the right way, and that the county is not afraid to pay for this work. It is also an indication of the fact that knowledge of road building is worth money. No doubt Mr. Spoon's knowledge and efforts will be worth to Forsyth county every cent of his salary. Forsyth county is taking of road improvement in the determined way which means that success is going to crown her efforts.

THE HEALTHFULNESS OF EUROPE.

The large body of newspapers of the country engaged in advising the populace to "see America first" do not appear to be successfully waging their campaign. The stream of passengers bound for Europe does not diminish. In fact it has materially increased recently, but this is no doubt due to the fact that so many thousands of people have gone from this country to England to witness the coronation. The Philadelphia Record has heard that people go to Europe for the "baths"—despite the fact that water is so plentiful in this country and that there are so many kinds of water. The Record says:

"An American medical periodical is wasting its time when it decries the marvelous cures effected at the European baths, says that many of the doctors at these establishments are quacks and their diagnoses worthless, and declares that the recuperation attributed to these resorts is due to rest, change, a beneficial climate and "suggestion." Although this explanation seems to leave sufficient reasons for going abroad, in fact it does not, and therefore it will be rejected by all Americans of means.

"It is notorious that Europe is chock full of health. Every American who finds himself developing aches and pains and can raise the price goes to Europe for health. There can't be any sickness in such a healthy place as Europe unless the Americans get all the health and there isn't enough left for the natives. Europe is also a boundless fountain of consolation. Every American widow whose husband's life insurance warrants it goes to Europe as soon as the funeral is over and takes a course of baths, from which she returns capable of taking a cheerful view of life.

"It is not enough to say that the beneficial efforts of Europe are due to rest and change and recreation. for those things can be got outside of Europe. The American procession headed for Carlsbad and Marienbad and all the other bads need some more specific excuse for going. They feel the necessity of being obliged to go to the European baths. It is essential to their comfort and happiness that those baths should give them something they cannot get elsewhere. Of course, they will not spend much of their time at the baths. They'll spend a good deal of time at Paris and Mentone on the way thither, and in Switzerland or Berlin or London on their way home. But there is no real peace of mind for them unless they know that the bath they are headed for is the only place in the world where they can recover their appetite for work and three meals a day, and the only spot where they can recover the shock of widowhood. Going to the "bad" is an established American custom, and doctors and medical journals that discourage it will get themselves disliked."

The Jamestown Tragedy.

The tragedy at Jamestown, says the Durham Herald, goes a long way towards justifying the law that makes burglary a capital offense. It does, and it is a law, too, that we cannot afford to repeal.—Salisbury Post.

Unquestionably correct. It was by the lady awakening while the marauders were at work that the tragedy in Jamestown occurred, and it goes to show that the criminal who enters the home at night has murder in his heart. He will kill rather than be captured. It is to protest against such, to sound a warning to others, that capital punishment is right in burglary cases.—Wilmington Dispatch.

The Negro Population Here.

Greensboro evidently has a good class of colored people among its citizenship. There had been much complaint about colored dives in Greensboro , but, as is often the case, it was hard to get the evidence, colored people not wanting to testify against members of their own race. However, when the decent colored element was appealed to a noble response was forthcoming. Not only did the good colored people offer to testify, but they signed the warrants. It was quite the correct thing for them to do, and such acts will do much towards helping the colored race. Every decent colored man should understand that the criminal of his race should be put down and he should lend his aid in that direction.—Wilmington Dispatch.

She Awoke Too Soon.

"For 40 long years have my good old wife and I traveled hand in hand down life's thorny road," said old Mr. Gush at a party the other evening, "and in all these years not one single harsh, hasty, unkind word has passed our lips when speaking to each other. Isn't that true, mother?"

"Mother" had quietly fallen asleep on the sofa by Mr. Gush's side, and as he laid his hand caressingly on her shoulder she gave a little snort of defiance and said sharply:

"Get up yourself and light the fire, Sam Gush: I lit it last, and I'll see you far enough before Ill do it this morning, you—oh—oh—I—I—why, where am I? I must have dropped off to sleep.'

"And I think you'd better have stayed asleep, Iolly Gush!" hissed Samuel into her ear as the crowd made a rush for the doors and dark corners. where giggling and tittering could be indulged in freely.

Inadequacy of Expression

The whole of life is an inadequate expression. There are many who are totally unable to give vent to their feelings or reveal their emotions or to fittingly express their sorrows or sentiments. They are not equal to the portrayal of their sensations or capable of putting into exact pantomime their ideas or notions.

They are like a writer who is driven to the use of "etcetera," or "words fail to express," or the "scene beggars description," when in the act of picturing a climax. They are like an orator who is not equal to the occasion in pose, gesture and enunciation, like one in authority who does not possess sufficient of porowess for the particular purpose of statemanship or execcutive leadership, like one who stands helpless before the working tools of vocabulary chisel and mallet, paint brush and canvas. There is such a thing as adequacy in the equipment and paraphernalia and yet inadequacy of power to use or lay hold on the same. There are many instances of working supplies, of tools, burnishment and utilitarian and costly applicances without justness of proportion to the power or skill to be applied in their manipulation.

And yet in a way the whole of life is only an inadequate expression. Given the earth, the skies, the sea, the breath of life and all things animate and inanimate there is yet an adequacy of power apparently vouchsafed to mankind to grasp and control and wrest the secrets of these. The whole expression of life in feeling and actions is painfully inadequate. There is not even a proportionate adequateness whereby to represent the inadequate. After all the toil, the expert knowledge, the discipline and the digging and delving nothing attains to the sufficiency or exactness of the adequate. Hence, it might be well to cultivate a more forbearing spirit toward the more conspicuously inadequate in mortals and their ways.

The mother who jogs and jolts and continuously keeps on kissing and fumbling over and fussing and fondling with the dimpled darling in her arms indulges in these demonstrations on account of her inadequacy in any other way to prove her fondness and devotion. This sort of inadequacy is in the world always. It may be improved somewhat by a course in rational training on the care of infants.

There is some kind of inadequacy which might be brought more nearly to the plane of the adequate through proper instruction and practice. For instance, the commencement oration prepared in plenty of time for repeated rehearsals. A careful estimate as to supplies when picnics and company are on the tapis, is another illustration. Service rendered in proportion to the wages or vice versa, is another. The inadequate is with us always. Do the best under limitations.

FOR HOUSEKEEPERS.

In one family a very excellent beef pie is made by the following recipe: Buy a piece of the round of beef about 2 inches wide and 4 inches long. Wrap a piece of suet in each of these slices. Sprinkle each little roll with flour that has been thoroughly seasoned with silt, pepper, chopped parsley and chopped celery. When each is thoroughly coated, pile in a crisscross manner in a deep dish in the center of which a small bowl has been placed upside down. Fill the pan with water almost to the top, cover with a good pastry and bake in the oven until the meat is done. In serving, slip the blade of a knife under the inverted bowl to release the rich gravy which has gathered there.

The iced tea is most delicious which is poured hot on the ice Springs of mint placed in the glass add to the excellence of this temperance drink.

To make strawberry tarts choose large, sound berries and place in shells of pastry which have been lightly cooked. Pour over a syrup made of granulated sugar and water, and cook until the strawberries are soft.

Gooseberry fool is an English dish which Americans like. Stew and sweeten the gooseberries. Whip the white of eggs to a stiff froth and sweeten and beat the gooseberry pulp into it. Set on ice to get very cold and serve with a boiled custard poured over it.

A pudding that is simple and still plenty good enough for "company" is made of sandwiches spread with orange marmalade. Cut bread into strips an inch wide and three inches long, butter and spread with the marmalade. Put another strip of bread on to complete the sandwich and pile these crisscross in a baking dish. Pour over a plain boiled custard and bake in the oven until set. Serve with cream.

A good housewife always serves black and red raspberries together, declaring that her brood likes the mixture much better than either kind alone.

The older the family tree, the more decayed are its branches.

LIVING EX-CONFEDERATE GENERALS.

Charles Edgeworth Jones, perhaps one of the best posted men in the South on Confederate history and whose historical works on Georgia have been widely read and quoted, contributes to The Augusta Chronicle a list of the 474 Confederate officers and their grades. Advice to the Business Woman

By William Allison Mayson, M. D.

Nerves are fatal to health and good looks. We constantly see wrecks of young women who are victims of numerous ills brought on from one cause or another, sometimes physical, again mental.

Various disturbances of the nervous system follow in the wake of infectious diseases, such as is grippe, which has been the Grim Reaper for so many of its victims this winter.

Typhoid fever, disorders of the stomach and intestines, overwork, lack of sufficient exercise and necessary diversion and a naturally high strung temperament are other common causes of diseases of the nervous system.

Those who are naturally high strung must take extra precautions to fight off "nerves." They must govern their tempers and cultivate patience. They should seek friends and a home environment soothing and resting in their influences, and those who are naturally cheerful and optimistic.

Young girls and older women engaged in the business world are frequent victimes of neurasthia.

Overwork in many cases is the cause. This state of exhaustion, however, is not always attributed to their business tasks, but their indifferent manner of living.

In seeking diversion they are not consistent with this means of rejuvenating themselves mentally. Too many nights a week at play, with continual reductions of sleeping hours, is an excellent way of cultivating nerves, wrinkles and a sallow skin.

On the other hand, women of maturer years do not put sufficient stress upon the necessary physicial and mental diversions to act as a sort of balance wheel, and send them back to their next day's work refreshed and eager.

HINTS FOR THE BOUDOIR

(By MILDRED WYCKOFF.)

Burnishing the Hair.

Castor oil is one of the best mediums for nourishing the hair, and a brilliantine containing two drachms of castor oil mixed with six ounces of eau de Cologne is said to represent an ideally pure dressing for imparting a gloss to the hair.

The brilliantine should be applied with a soft hair brush, a few drops of the liquid being first placed in the palm of the hand and the brush rubbed into it with a rotary motion in order to spread the brilliantine evenly over the surface of the brush.

It should then be passed very lightly over the hair, which should have been thoroughly well brushed with a dry hair brush previously. Many Frenchwomen complete the brushing with a soft silk handkerchief.

To Keep Fair Hair Glossy and Bright

A dry shampoo taken every two weeks will brighten the color of the hair, and makes it fluffy and easy to dress. For the shampoo mix half an ounce of powdered sulphur with an ounce of powdered orris root, sprinkle it well into the hair and brush it all out in the morning, using a perfectly clean hair brush. After the powder is all removed, rub the scalp with a soft silk handkerchief.

Toilet Topics.

To remove a wart or corn in a painless method, bind a thick slice of a California lemon on for a few days.

Bee stings are relieved by a few drops of California lemon juice.

To prevent dandruff a well-known professional beauty with glorious mop of curly red hair, uses California lemon juice mixed with three times the amount of water. This she rubs on the scalp each night. She claims that less of hair can be treated in the same way with marked success. Any way it is easy and well worth the trial.

For La Grippe.

When la grippe has you fastened tightly in its clutches, try the old standby—flax see lemonade. Flax seed—(whole)—four tablespoonfuls: boiling water, one quart; juice of three California lemons. Sweeten to taste. Let it cook slowly for two hours. If too thick, dilute with water and strain.

THE KITCHEN

Palace Pudding.

Prepare a custard with the yolks of three eggs, three-quarters of a pint of milk and a tablespoonful of sugar. Flavor with the rind of an orange and dissolve one ounce of gelatine in it. When nearly cold gradually fill a prepared bold with layers of custard and slices of four sponge cakes soaked in sweetened orange juice. When cold turn out.

A German Method of Cooking Potatoes.

Take eight or 10 middling-sized potatoes, three ounces of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, half a pint of broth and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Put the flour and butter in a stew pan, stir over the fire until the butter is a nice brown color, add the broth and vinegar. Peel and cut the potatoes in long thin slices, lay them in the pan and let them simmer gently till tender, which will be in 10 or 15 minutes. Serve very hot.

A Tempting Salad.

Our grocers are now displaying tempting visions of early salad in their windows. Here is a nice little salad which you should try: One lettuce, two bunches of watercress, a small quantity of mustard and cress, two or three small tomatoes, a few "breakfast" radishes and, if liked, three or four spring onions. Shred the lettuce and pick over the watercress, wash thoroughly in salted water and trim and wash the radishes and onions. Shake in a dry cloth and arrange prettily in your salad bowl, garnishing the top with sliced tomatoes. Pour over a good dressing at the last minute.

Score One for the Irish Lawyers.

A certain judge by the name of Greene was once trying a case in which one of the attorneys was unmistakably a son of the Emerald Isle. The judge ruled against the attorney on several points in a manner that the latter regarded as arbitrary, and finally, just as the judge was about to decide another point, he rose and said:

"I hope yer honor will not decide against me on this point until he has read the following section from 'Browney on Frauds.'"

"What did you say was the name of the author?" inquired the judge.

"Browney, yer honor; Browne, Browney."

"My name," said the judge "is spelled Greene; how would you pronounce that. 'Greene,' or 'Greeney?'"

"I shall reserve me judgment on that yer honor," replied the attorney, "until the honorable court has rendered a decision in the case."

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Color.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair, and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Airing a Fumigated Room.

To air a room that has been fumigated after a contagious sickness, before entering it, this plan is suggested. Before sealing up the room for fumigating, fasten two screw-eyes into the lower edge of the upper sash of a window in the room; to these tie a heavy cord, leaving the loop between long enough to hang within easy reach of a window on the floor below. After the room has been sufficiently fumigated, pull the cord from the lower window, thus opening the upper window and letting the fresh air in and the close air out.—Woman's Home Companion.

John Henry MAKES A SPEECH

By GEORGE V. HOBART

The days rolled by and Ruraldene watched with increasing interest the struggle for supremacy between Mr. Peter Grant and Mr. William Gray.

From the moment the glad tidings spread around that they were out to make monkeys of each other it seemed that every voter in the community quit work and gum-shoed after the two Candidates.

Everybody knew that money would flow like water, and everybody was for putting bulkhead compartments in the clothes.

As for me! Well, Uncle Peter handed me a fat slob of a checkbook and told me to cut loose, and I became so popular in all the booze bazaars that I had to wear ice in the derby to keep the noddle from spreading. I was his campaign manager, and Bunch Jefferson held the same post for Bill Gray.

I worked eighteen hours a day every day and I slept with one lamp lit.

I began to notice that the Gray faction was making a big play for the women. They seemed to think that if they got the wives and mothers on their side it would be all off with the Grant prospects.

Bunch Jefferson had handbills and three-sheets all over town with cracks like these in big black type:

GOD BLESS OUR HOME
WHICH KNOWS NO PETER GRANT!

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A MOTHER?
ASK PETER GRANT, THE POLITICAL PIRATE.

WHEN WAS PETER GRANT BORN?
AND WHY?

"The opposition is out to jolly the women along," I explained to Uncle Peter, "because they think Mama will influence Papa's political opinions. They are throwing the taffy at Mother and getting her woozy with the happy conversation in the hope that she'll crowd Papa up in the corner and take his vote away from him. It's up to us to say a few pleasant words about Father, for, after all, it's Dad that does the heavy thinking on election day and bites deep into the lead-pencil before putting his mark on the wrong side of the ticket. Let's pass the candy to Papa and put a crimp in the opposition's plan of campaign."

"Who Buys the Chicken for Sunday Dinner?"

"But how?" inquired Uncle Peter.

"I've cooked up a speech for you," I answered, "and it's the goods. What's more, I've fixed it so that there'll be an audience here in half an hour to hear it."

"Great Scott, John!" exclaimed Uncle Peter, "I can't make an important speech on a half-hour's notice."

"To the bench for yours," I said. "I'm going to talk for you."

"You—you are—you," he spluttered.

"Sure I am," I came back; "and why not? I'll tell 'em you have a mild attack of tonsilitis and that I have undertaken to read your speech."

"But perhaps I may not approve of all the sentiments therein," he insisted.

"Approve nothing," I said; "I'm going to make this speech and put you on Pleasant Avenue with the push. They'll think you wrote it and you'll be the hit of the show. Now be good and go gargle your sore throat."

Uncle Peter walked off shaking his head doubtfully, and I prepared for the audience, which had already begun to straggle across the lawn.

In half an hour there was a large gathering of men, women and children camped on our premises, and promptly to the minute I mounted the rostrum.

Uncle Peter, with a bandanna handkerchief around his neck, sat near me and put his hand on his forehead from time to time to indicate that he had throat trouble.

"Ladies and gentlemen," I began, "I thank you for this goodly attendance, and beg to inform you, with sincere regret, that our Candidate has a severe attack of tonsilitis and cannot talk!"

(Cheers and cries of "Good! Good!")

"With your kind indulgence I shall therefore read his speech, which, believe me, is an oratorical effort such as Demosthenes might be proud of and which Socrates would gladly call his own!"

"Ladies and gentlemen:—It was mutually agreed upon by both parties that this was to be a campaign free from personalities and mud-slinging, but long before the gong sounded old Sourface Bill Gray lost his temper and said things about us which burned his throat as they came out!"

(Cries of "Kill him! kill him!" which caused Uncle Peter to hastily move his chair back.)

"We don't believe in personalities or mud-slinging, ladies and gentlemen, but we will give $5,000 to a charity if old Bill Gray's heart hasn't a complexion like a coal-heaver!"

(Loud applause.)

"If, after examination, it is found that his heart hasn't a complexion like a coal-heaver, then he loses. Dare he accept this challenge?"

(Loud cries of "Ask me!")

"We have noticed, ladies and gentlemen, that the opposition is keen to shower compliments on the women, to the utter exclusion of the men. No man may say with impunity that Peter Grant is not chivalry itself in the presence of the fair sex, but is it justice to the men to lock them up in the ice-house?"

(Loud cries of "No! no!" "Let us out!")

"Why does the opposition heap compliments on Mama to the exclusion of Papa? Is this true politics? Is this the vaunted freedom for which our fathers fought and bled their country? A miscreant, a marauder, is now, in the form of old Bill Gray, leering at the ladies and seeking with sickly smiles to secure their sympathy!"

(Loud applause from the children, who thought I was beginning a fairy tale.)

"Why does the opposition continually iterate and reiterate the question, 'What is home without a Mother?' They have made this the one great political issue of the day. Has the opposition ever stopped to ask, 'What is home without a Papa?' Never, to the everlasting shame of the opposition, never!"

(Tremendous excitement and loud cheers.)

"We are determined to have justice in this campaign, and no matter upon whose shoulders the blow may fall we ask 'What the matter with Dad?'"

(Loud cries of "He's all right! You bet!")

"The opposition is pleased to preface all its literature in this campaign with these words, 'God bless Home and Mother!' Now, in simple justice to the founders of this great cradle of freedom, we say to the opposition, how dare you kick Father off the front steps? Why isn't Dad's name mentioned on the bill of fare?"

(Cries of "Lynch him! Lynch him!" whereupon Uncle Peter turned pale and pointed at his sore throat.)

"Who is it, I ask you, ladies and gentlemen, who is it that rises at early dawn, lights the fire, cooks a hard-boiled egg and is out kicking the dew off the grass while Mother is still chasing a new dress through the valley of Dreamland? Dad!

"Who is it that has to buy a six-dollar overcoat and then has to chase out to the barn in the storm and let the rain melt the overcoat? Dad!

"Who is it that gathers in $18 of a pay day and has to hand out $22 of it before sunset? Dad!

"Who is it that has to meet the grocer and the butcher and the baker and the rent collector and wear out his voice trying to stand them off? Dad!

"Who buys the chicken for the Sunday dinner, carves it himself and then draws the neck from the discard after every one else is served? Dad!

"Who meets an old friend he hasn't seen for years, hoists in a few dippers of suds, moseys home with a good-natured souse only to find that Ma makes him sleep on the ironing-board in the dining-room? Dad!

"Ladies and gentlemen, we believe 'What is home without a Mother' as a campaign issue is untenable, and we insist that 'What is home without a Father?' is the one burning question of the hour—a question which has remained unanswered, unhonored and unsung too long in this campaign!"

"So, ladies and gentlemen, here's to Dad!—the silent hero of the household! To Dad, the willing worker! To Dad, the humblest bit of bric-a-brac in the parlor! To Dad, who goes through life with the soft pedal on the voice! You may have many faults, dear old Dad, and you may play second fiddle with the mute on, but we'll miss you when you're gone. To Dad, ladies and gentlemen, the ace in life's pack of cards!"

The excitement was intense when I finished, and was sure that old Bill Gray had been set back about ten feet in the estimation of the populace. There was nothing to it.

While cheer after cheer arose Uncle Peter whispered hoarsely, "John, you never said a word about my platform. I'll have to explain my position with regard to the Increased-Cost-of-Living club!"

When Uncle Peter rose to address the assemblage I noticed a stranger hurrying hither and thither through the crowd, whispering in the ears of the men.

Then, just as our Candidate bowed amiably, and began, "Ladies and gentlemen," a mighty yell went up and instantly the assemblage broke, dashed for the gate and charged wildly across lots in the direction of the river, leaving as an audience for the startled Uncle Peter one woman and three babies.

"Mr. Gray sent word that he has tapped eight kegs of beer in the ball grounds," the woman informed me, "but my children ain't got no thirst for it yet. They'd rather watch the old gent make funny faces!"

Uncle Peter collapsed and Aunt Martha fanned him vigorously, while Clara J. exclaimed spitefully, "That Bunch Jefferson is a perfect fiend."

"How did you guess it?" I said, trying hard not to smile.

NO WESTERN MAN FOR HER

New York Stenographer Objects to Employer Whose Business Day Begins Before Nine.

A New York office had advertised for stenographers, and when the applicants came they were interviewed by the assistant manager, who was a woman. An agreement almost had been closed with one bright girl when the assistant mentioned incidentally that the proprietor was a western man. Instantly the fair face of the applicant clouded. "In that case," she said firmly, "I do not wish the position. I am working for a western man now, and that is why I wish to make a change. Why, do you know—" her voice dropped to a low, tragic tone, as of one who voices hidden crime—"that man actually gets down to the office at six o'clock in the morning, and he expects us to be there at eight. Worse than that, even when we are on hand promptly at eight he acts as if it was about the middle of the day. Of course, it is easy for him, for it seems he gets up about four o'clock every morning, works a bit at home, reaches the office at six and piles up work for us until eight, so it really does seem late to him when we arrive. No more western men for me, thank you. Any little old New York man will do for me, for New York men don't try to begin office hours before nine or ten o'clock."

Sometimes it seems as though a man would have to be a contortionist to make both ends meet.

Triangle, N. Y., Aug. 26, 1910

"Gentlemen:—Owing to my seeing the serious kidney and rheumatic troubles of my nephew so completely "knocked out' with Dr. Carey's remedies and his advice to me to test same, is why I ordered the medicines.

"Since my three years' Civil War experience, each year I have been troubled with rheumatism, and in all that time never got on to a permanent 'knockout' remedy until now. For the last five years my kidneys have been affected and Dr. Carey's Kidney and Bladder Remedy, MARSH ROOT, has cured me.

"I write you the above advising you to make it known to the public as I wish every one so seriously affected, to catch on to a proper treatment.

Yours truly,

The shops and booths of Japan are of unfailing interest. Here the greengrocer and fruitseller has arranged his wares till it seems as though one looked upon a great bouquet. There the flower shop blazes in brilliance and the lantern maker squats at his multicolored task. At the next entrance we perhaps see a man severing chicken meat from the bone, and he performs the operation as skillfully as the surgeon with his dissecting knife.

Two or three paces farther on one is confronted with a typical Japanese shoe store. The newcomer is at once startled at the immense quantity of this simple footwear and the many places where it is sold, but he soon finds a solution to his query when he hears that a Japanese man annually makes away with from eight to ten pairs.

But curious things are not found in the shops alone. The green vegetable peddler carries loads heavy enough for a horse, but still has enough energy to call his wares as he goes. One marvels at those wonderful, big, snow white radishes he sells; green onions, carrots, fruits and even lotus roots dug from the muddy bottoms of ponds. Fancy yourself eating long burdock roots which grow in any country backyard! The Japanese consider these a toothsome article.—Christian Herald.

Where Rural Schools Attract.

It is as true as it is strange that in Iowa many rural schools are so attractive that city boys are sent out of the city to attend the rural school. I know one country school in which there are six children from city schools. A "chicken roast" is the latest school attraction that I have known. A teacher is making the schoolhouse the center of social life for the district. She does not like the idea of having a dance in the school, and she will not have kissing fracases, so she plans various social functions with stunts and games that have abundance of life, that are new, that are harmless. She does quite a little along the line of refreshments, and everyone takes a part in the preparation as well as in disposing of the feast. The greatest success she has ever had was a chicken roast. It was in the autumn, and was in the school yard. It was a close approach to a barbecue. Every man, woman and child in the district was there.—Journal of Education.

GREAT THRIFT IN BUYING

Instance of the Persistent Housewife's Economy in Purchasing Half a Dozen Eggs.

"Just to show you how the small economics practiced by thrifty housewives may sometimes be carried too far," began the driver of the pie wagon; "well, I see a lot of it along my route, but this happened down at the market house. My wife was scouting around among the neighbors and one of them told her that there was one stand at the market where they were selling fresh eggs for fifteen cents a dozen. So she hiked right down there. The market was crowded and she had a hard time, but she pushed along till she came to a butter and egg shop. 'Eggs, sixteen cents,' the sign said, so she plunged along for the next. But eggs were sixteen cents there, too, and at the next place and the next. A little thing like that didn't lick her, though. She hunted for about a half an hour, and at last found the place she was after. The sign cheered her up a lot.

"Your eggs are fifteen cents a dozen here?" she asked, just to make sure.

"Yes, ma'am."

"'Well, give me half a dozen.'

"And she lays down her eight cents and walks out satisfied with her morning's work. She got mad when I tried to tell her that half a dozen of the 16-cent eggs would've been just as cheap."

Dream of Wealth Dispelled.

A sad but illuminating commentary on the futility of human hopes when applied to getting rich quick is furnished by an advertisement which recently appeared in one of the San Francisco daily newspapers in the classified columns Here it is: "I will sell—I have 5,000 shares of a once well-known mining and leasing company; will exchange same for one setting hen and thirteen fresh eggs (Leghorn preferred); only permanent investors need apply. A. J. Moore, Rooms 20-21 Bacon Block, Oakland."

SUCH A BLUNDERING BUNCH!

They Buried Bill When It Was Other Twin Who Drowned, Said Mark Twain.

Once upon a time Mark Twain was interviewed. After various questions the interviewer came to the question of relatives, and from then on, according to Twain's own version of things, the conversation ran thus:

"Who is this picture on the wall? Isn't that a brother of yours?"

"Oh, yes, yes! Now that you remind me of it, that was a brother of mine. That's William, Bill we called him. Poor old Bill!"

"Why, is he dead, then?"

"Ah, well, I suppose so. We never could tell. There was a great mystery about it."

"That was very, very sad. He disappeared, then?"

"Well, yes, in a general sort of way. We buried him."

"Buried him! Buried him without knowing whether he was dead or not?"

"Oh, no! Not that. He was dead enough."

"Well, I confess that I can't understand this. If you buried him and you knew he was dead—"

"No, no! We only thought he was."

"Oh, I see, he came to life again."

"I bet he didn't."

"Well, I never heard anything like this. Somebody was dead. Somebody was buried. Now, where was the mystery?"

"That's just it. That's it exactly! You see, we were twins—defunct and I; and we got mixed in the bathtub when we were only two weeks old, and one of us was drowned; but we didn't know which. Some think it was Bill; some think it was me."

"Well, that was remarkable. What do you think?"

"Goodness knows! I would give whole worlds to know. This solemn, this awful mystery has cast a gloom over my whole life. But I will tell you a secret now, which I have never revealed to any creature before. One of us had a peculiar mark, a large mole, on the back of his left hand; that was me. That child was the one that was drowned. So, you see, they made an awful blunder. I was drowned, but they went and buried the wrong child. Sh-h-h-h-h, don't say a thing about it where the family can hear it. It's a very sore spot."

The Junkman of the Sea.

The carrier snail is to the sea what the junkman is to the land. It receives its name from its habit of carrying foreign objects on its back. Nothing comes amiss to the carrier snail if it is not too big. Cast-off shells of small molluscs, bits of broken coral, tiny stones, and even fragments of broken glass dropped overboard from passing vessels are cemented firmly to the edges of the growing shell. Nor is it satisfied when the shell is completely covered, but continues to add to its collection by fastening new pieces to the old ones already piled upon its back until it is no longer able to move beneath its burden.

As it is an inhabitant of tropical waters swarming with voracious fish, crabs, etc., there is method in its madness; its hungry enemies pass it by unable to distinguish it from the rocks and shells on the sea bottom. Some of the snails show a preference for tiny pebbles all of one shape and equal size, others accumulate only shells of one kind, and one picked up off the coast of Japan had its portable house entirely roofed with glass.

Growing Umbrella Handles.

At Maule, a small village near Paris, is carried on a singular industry which is little known. It is a nursery for the cultivation of trees suitable for use as umbrella handles, walking sticks and alpenstocks.

Nearly 500 acres of ground are given over to ash, oak, chestnut and maple saplings. One year after planting these are cut off near the root so as to make them grow several branches, which are then kept free from secondary stems.

The most curious part of the industry comes the following year. Incisions are made in the bark, thus engraving upon it various designs. When the bark is stripped these designs are found traced on the wood. At the end of the third year the branches are cut, stripped of their bark, bent into various shapes and sent to the manufacturers. Certain forms of handles are shaped while the branches are still growing.—Popular Magazine.

River Flows Inland From Sea.

A currant of water will flow back and forth in a tide-water river, but on the Island of Cephalonia, near Greece, says Popular Mechanics, is the curious phenomena of a river steadily flowing inward from the sea and disappearing. All rivers naturally flow toward the lower levels to the sea, and this curious instance on the island in the Mediterranean is not duplicated anywhere else in the world so far as is known.

The sea, which is almost tideless, enters the land at four points where the coast is practically on a level with the surface of the sea. These four streams unite to form the little river that flows inland until it finally disappears in the limestone rocks and sinks into the earth. The volume of the river is too great to be removed by evaporation and the question is, Where does it go?

COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, La., June 14.—Liverpool acted on yesterday's government report and showed new crops about 3 better than due, spots sales 6,000 at unchanged prices. A bearish feeling continues to dominate our markets and there was considerable bear pressure from the opening on prospects of cloudy weather in the Western States. The map shows generally fair in belt with the exception of a partly cloudy streak in Texas. No rain and temperatures in Texas and the South central belt and heating up in the Atlantics. Indications are fair and hot in the central and eastern states, possibly cloudy in the western states and some isolated sprinkles but no prospects for general rains such as are needed. There is, however, a cool wave formation in the far northwest will bear watching. So far these cool waves which can cause rain have passed too far north over the belt to produce rains in the cotton region. The government forecast of increasing cloudiness in Texas and Oklahoma was the signal for much pounding and October here dropped to 13.44.

Accounts from the best people say that the crop has been seriously checked and retarded by this long dry spell. On the whole it appears that crops prospects have been too severely injured to support any material decline from the present price level. Reliable accounts with hardly an exception say the crop is unusually small and not developing on account of dry weather.

Official records show a temperature average of 102 degrees for the state of Texas. Twenty-nine stations in Texas record 100 to 104 degrees. Near positions in New York also showed weakness which helped to depress new crops. The market has a nervous undertone and is waiting for weather news. Should the anticipation of relief be disappointed and there be no general rain, a decided covering movement would come on the market.

Mrs. W. C. Rankin Dies Suddenly

Mrs. William C. Rankin died suddenly yesterday afternoon at 1:30 oclock at her home three miles north of this city. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from Buffalo Presbyterian church, of which the deceased had for years been a faithful and devoted member, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Goodman. The interment will follow in the church graveyard.

Mrs. Rankin had been in failing health for about a year, but her death was unpected. She was 54 years of age and is survived by her husband and five children, Mrs. A. J. Klutz, Howard, Watson, and Robert Rankin, of Greensboro, and Edwin Rankin of Charlotte. One brother, H. L. Cannon, and four sisters, Mrs. W. J. Hendrix, Mrs. A. C. Rankin, Mrs. H. C. Rudd and Mrs. J. W. Paisley, the latter of McLeansville, also survive.

Messrs. Howard and Watson Rankin were employed at the Fariss-Klutz Drug Co. and the store will be closed today in respect to Mrs. Rankin.

Had Two Fingers Cut Off.

J. W. Bratton, superintendent of the Allright Seat Company, met with a painful accident yesterday while at work in the shop. He was manipulating a handjoiner when the machine suddenly caught his hand and the two middle fingers of the left hand were cleanly severed at the first joint. Drs. Williams and Tankersley dressed the wound, which, on account of the clean amputation of the members is expected to heal quickly and nicely.

Emerson on Civilization.

The civilized man has built a coach, but has lost the use of his feet. He is supported on crutches, but lacks so much support of muscle. He has a Geneva watch, but he fails of the skill to tell the hour by the sun. A Greenwich nautical almanac he has, and so, being sure of the information when he wants it, the man in the street does not know a star in the sky. The solstice he does not observe; the equinox he knows as little; and the whole bright calendar of the year is without a dial in the mind. His libraries overload his wit; the insurance office increases the number of accidents; and it may be a question whether machinery does not incumber; whether we have not lost by refinement some energy, by a Christianity intrenched in establishments and forms, some vigor of wild virtue. For every Stoic was a Stoic, but in Christendom where is the Christian? —Emerson.

NORTH STATE CAPITAL NEWS

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh June 14.—In a letter to the incoming boards of education who organize for the ensuing term July 1st, State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. Y. Joyner appeals for the greatest care in the selection of the county superintendents of schools and the district committeemen, insisting that the schools of the county cannot be operated successfully without efficient superintendents and competent district committeemen. He insists that county superintendents should in all cases devote their entire time to this work and appeals that they be selected without fear of prejudice, political or sectarian, with consideration especially for the welfare of the children and the highest degree of success for the schools. If such a man is not available in the county, then he insists that the board look outside the county for the right man. He asks that those county superintendents who have shown their fitness for the position be re-elected and sustained in such a way as to enable him to attain yet greater success, but in the case of incompetencyy he insists that the boards owe it to the people and the children to fearlessly discharge their duty in seeking out a better man for the work. He asks that the superintendents be paid as liberally as possible, making sure that "more man and more time are gotten for more money."

The sub-State Text Book Commission completed today the hearing of book men on the merits of the different readers that are presented for adoption for use in the public schools. They have now finished with hearings on drawing, writing and reading text-books. It will take ten days longer yet, however, to complete the hearings.

A statement from Rex Hospital is to the effect that there is a strong probability now for the recovery of Graham Herring, the young Apex man who attempted to board a freight train at New Hill Monday morning to get to the terrible Apex fire that destroyed $50,000 property in the business section. Herring was relief telegraph operator at New Hill and wanted to reach Apex to help fight fire. An amputated leg and fractured skull are most serious injuries.

Women and Society

TO ONE NEGLECTED.

Who daily goes his plodding way
And totes his load till he is gray,
Yet never asks for praise nor pay?
Why, Father!

Who often obligates himself
To pay out grinding grist in pelf—
Yet sits undusted on the shelf?
Poor Father!

Who pays the doctor bills and such
And digs for coin to beat the Dutch—
Yet who's not thought of very much?
It's daddy!

Who trots the kid at gray of dawn
With only his pajamas on,
And never dares to say "Doggone?"
Same person.

Who is it never makes a kick
But someone hits him with a brick?
Who grins and bears it, thin and thick?
Our pater!

Who washes dishes now and then,
And risks the scoffs of lesser men?
Who falls, but gets right up again?
The Governor!

Who, when this weary life shall end,
His way to heavenly rest will wend
And somewhere find a tardy friend?
Why, ditto

Hence is this little lyric writ
To praise poor dad a little bit—
My interest is that I am It!
I'm Father!

MARGOLIUS—STERNBERGER.

A beautiful and impressive ceremony was solemnized last night at 8 o'clock when Miss Sarah Sternberger, of this city, and David Margolius, of Norfolk, Va., approached the sacred altar of Hymen and pledged their union by repeating their marriage vows. Both parties are prominent in local and State society, and the wedding of the couple has attracted wide attention, especially in this city where the bride is known and universally admired.

The Temple Emanuel, or Jewish Synagogue, was the scene of the nuptial ceremony, which was conducted by Rev. Dr. Eggleston, Rabbi of the congregation here, and which strictly followed the Jewish rites. While the guests were assembling the Bridal Chorus from the Rosemaiden was sung by Misses Eugenia Patterson and Clara Stahl and Messrs. Karl Ljung and Allan Preyer. Just before the bridal party entered Miss Patterson sang "All for You," by D'Hardelot. To the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin rendered by Prof. Claude Robeson at the organ, the bridal party entered.

The first members of the bridal party to pass down the central aisle were the ushers, J. W. Cone, J. A. Oettinger, E. M. Oettinger, David Stern, Charlie Weil and Fritz Landaer. They were followed by the flower-girl, little Miss Amelia Sternberger. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Rosa Sternberger, sister of the bride. accompanied by the Rabbi, Rev. Dr. Eggleston. The groom entered attended by the best man, his brother, Isaac Margolius, of Norfolk. Finally came the bride, looking especially attractive in her bridal costume and leaning upon the arm of her father, H. Sternberger, who gave the hand of his daughter in marriage.

Before an altar of living green made from a bank of potted plants, palms and ferns, with which the temple was beautifully and profusely decorated, the couple knelt and repeated the solemn and binding vows. Throughout theceremony Prof. Robeson softly rendered "Traumeri," by Schumann. For the recessional Mendelssohn's Wedding March was rendered.

The Reception.

From the synagogue the bridal party and guests went in carriages to the home of the bride, where her sister, Miss Janette Sternberger, was the hostess at a brilliant reception in honor of the couple. Many guests enjoyed the charming affair until the newly married couple, accompanied by friends, went to the depot to board 38 for a honeymoon trip to various cities and points of interest in the North. When the happy couple had safely boarded the train, amid showers of rice andd departed with the best wishes of many friends, the guests returned to the hospitable Sternberger home on Summit avenue and there prolonged the brilliant reception until a late hour.

Among the guests were a large number who had traveled long distances to witness the ceremony, among them being: Mr. and Mrs. R. Margolius, Mr. and Mrs. I. Margolius and Mr. I. Sternberger, of Norfolk, Va.; Isaac Strauss, of Sumter, S. C.; Sam Shaffer, of Little Rock, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. DeGough and daughter, Miss Rennetta, of Florence, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Strauss, of Clio, S. C.

Mrs. L. J. Brandt will have the same in charge, with a corps of pretty girls serving ice cream and cake.

Evening at "Hawthorne Lane."

The following from yesterday's Charlotte News will be of interest to many Greensboro people:

"With hospitality characteristic of their lovely home, well named Hawthorne Lane, as it is full of poetic suggestions, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. McNinch entertained last night in honor of their attractive guests, Misses Hildah and Ruth Groome and Mary Bingley. Wild flowers from the woodlands nearby adorned the artistic interior, while growing pots ornamented the wide veranda. The punch bowl was attractively set on the veranda under a fairy lamp of lovely colors. The dining-room was effective in white and green, the table was overlaid with exquisite lace. Silver candle sticks shaded with white, white bonbons and white roses under the green electrolier made a charming effect.

The evening was delightful in its informality. During the evening Miss Laurie Spong—who has a lovely voice—gave several selections which were greatly enjoyed."

Miss Lillie Taylor has returned to this city from a visit to Roanoke.

Miss Nita Masten has returned to Winston-Salem, after a visit to Miss Linnie Mann, in this city.

Miss Ruth Brooks has rturned from a visit to Durham, accompanied by Mrs. C. M. Long, who will be her guest.

Mrs. W. V. Stipe and daughter, Miss Lula Stipe, are visiting relatives in Greensboro and Highpoint.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Miss Mary B. Ralls is visiting relatives in High Point.

Mrs. Thomas W. Tate will leave this morning for Charleston, W. Va., after spending some time with her mother, Mrs. A. Weatherly, Eugene street.

Mrs. B. A. Irvin, of New Bern, is in the city visiting friends.

Street Railroad Extension Soon in High Point

High Point, June 14.—R. J. Hole of the Public Service Company is here today in the interest of building the street car extension. Mr. Hole advises us that additional equipment including the cross ties, the iron rails and poles have all been shipped. Work will begin as soon as the matter of the street is settled. Mr. Clark, vice-president and also chief engineer of the Public Service Company, will be on the ground here this week to confer with Mayor Tate and the Board when they will go over the different locations and decide definitely the route.

Under the terms of the franchise the company has till September 15 to complete the one mile of extension within the city. But Mr. Hole says the company will push the work of completing it before that time.

While English street was suggested, there was some objection, the street being too narrow. This matter will be settled after the conference with Mr. Clark and the city officials.

"CASCARETS" END ALL THE MISRABLE DAYS

A Ten Cent Box Insures You Against a Sick Headache, Billiousness, Constipation or a Bad Stomach for a Long Time.

Primitive men did not need Cascarets. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine, too rich.

We can't have the bowels clogged up and keep well. It means that the food retained there decays. The decay creates poisons. And those poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. So we must make our choice. We must live, to an extent, like the primitive man, else we must eat Cascarets.

Cascarets do what the right food would do, what plenty of exercise does. The effect is as natural from one as the other. The question is one of convenience. If you choose Cascarets, take them as you take food, not in large doses rarely, but a tablet at a time. That is the way to keep well. Get a 10 cent box now.

"BAD MAN" OF THE PRESENT

Automobile Joy Rider a Worthy Successor of the Reckless Frontiersman of Other Days.

The most typical "rough house" character of the past has been the cowboy. The most reckless character of the present day is the automobile fiend. The rowdy ruffian of the future will probably ride the aeroplane.

The short story reader, says a Chicago newspaper, is familiar with the "bad man" of the frontier. Remington has made the world familiar with the shooting up of towns. With a volley of yells and a volley of revolver shots the cowboys go galloping through the town. Galloping, you notice, is the word. If there was ever a case of shooting up a town or other picturesque ruffianry in the cowboy days that did not begin or end with the clatter of hoofs it is yet to be recorded.

In the same way the automobile misdemeanor goes with a rush and a honk. Only a few days ago a party of automobilists shot up a New York cafe. They did it in the good old-fashioned way, only that they used gasoline for a motive power in place of panting horse flesh. The shooting up occurred in the vicinity of Broadway and Thirty-ninth street. The shooters were ejected from the cafe. In revenge they clambered into their machine and going by the inhospitable drink shop filled it full of bullets.

The police records of any western town of twenty years ago were filled with the crimes of dashing horsemen. The daily paper of the present is filled with the misdemeanors of the automobilist. Is it part of the speed mania to make a man contemptuous of law and order? Does the whistle of the wind across his ears fill him with a desire to run down many victims and fill them full of bullet holes?

Whether the indictment of speed is capable of legal proof or not one thing is sure; the automobilist is the legitimate successor of the cowboy and is continuing his work of riding roughshod over law and order. The sight of a reeling cowboy galloping down the street with guns waved on high sent terror to the hearts of women and children and law-abiding citizens in the past. So in the present day the sight of an automobile clipping corners off baby carriages and grocery stores creates a panic. The bad man and gun fighter of the plains has passed away, but he has left a worthy and able successor in the joy rider of the cities.

Mme. Curie's Assistant.

Mme. Curie, the most remarkable woman scientist, is very particular in choosing her laboratory assistants and, although she has many men working under her, there is only one woman. This is a very bright young Norwegian, Miss Gledtisch, who has her B. S. and M. S. from the University of Christiania, of which she was the youngest woman to graduate. She passed her examinations with high honors, and took up the study of radio-activity. She contributed several papers on the subject which awakened such approval that, although much younger than the majority of the students, she was appointed instructor in physics, one of the first women to hold that position in Norway.

Her independent research work was so good, however, that the Norwegian government soon gave her a stipend with which to continue her studies on the continent. As she had specialized in radio-activity, she naturally wrote to Mme. Curie who, after a rigid examination, admitted her to the laboratory, of which she is now practically the first assistant.

For the Growing Child.

The famous French dietition, Gautier, is on record as saying that after the first three years of a child's life the addition of muscular tissue may and ought to be given to him in a very moderate quantity. Roast mutton or lamb, beef, minced ham, rather than veal, with the addition of eggs in all styles, creams and rice, vermicelli in soup, butter, thoroughly cooked fruits, stewed potatoes, green vegetables and cocoa, all of these are suitable. He states that the exclusive use of milk tends to make fat, lymphatic, puffy children, capable of standing little. This is further accentuated by the abuse of sweetened dishes. It is also necessary at this age to avoid giving foods which are highly seasoned and too much salted. Fat fish (herring and salmons), dry fish, salted or smoked, mushrooms, crustacea or vinegars and spices, raw, dry, unripe or too acid fruits are unsuitable. Fermented cheeses, alcoholic liquors of all descriptions, also coffee and tea should not be allowed.

Something Wrong.

She had just returned from a shopping tour, tired, but radiant.

He had just returned from the office, tired, but—well, tired.

Quivering with delight at the array of samples snipped from rolls of dress goods, she emptied the contents of her purse into her lap. There was a metallic sound. A look of dismay crossed her face.

"There!" she eclaimed. "I just knew there was something I had forgotten to buy."

"What was it, dear?" he asked with an assumption of interest.

"I'm sure I don't know," she replied petulantly, "but I find I have a half dollar left!"

This incident will explain why the big department stores pay such small dividends to the stockholders.

RICH MEN IN GARRETS

MILLIONAIRES WHO CHOOSE TO LIVE LIKE HERMITS.

Eccentricities of G. E. Dering and Sir Henry Delves Broughton of England—Solodovnikoff, the Miser King of St. Petersburg.

The "vanity of riches" has never been more strikingly demonstrated than by the story of G. E. Dering, who recently died at Lockley Hall, Walwyn.

For the greater part of half a century this lord of many acres and of a quarter of a million of money has been content to lead the life of a hermit in his magnificent home surrounded by a thousand acres of park land. His valuable pictures—by Holbein, Fra Bartolomeo and other old masters—have stood for a generation stocked three deep with their faces turned to the walls; a generation of dust had settled undisturbed on Dresden vases, gold and enamel clocks, statuary and costly furniture.

Gorgeous carriages, rich with heraldic painting, lay rotting in his coach house; his front door was overgrown with ivy as high as the stone shield of arms that crowned it. Not even a lamb was allowed to bleat within hearing of the lord of this desolate mansion; and even the high road was diverted, that no sound of traffic should vex his ears. Thus, amid dust, decay and desolation, lived and died the owner of £25,000 a year, shunning the world and scorning his wealth.

And so it has always been and always will be. One man squandered his gold; another hoards or despises it. It is but a few years since one of our wealthiest baronets—a man with a rent roll of £30,000 a year—died in a miserable attic near Waterloo Bridge. His sordid room was papered with illustrations from the weekly papers; he never crossed its threshold except for an occasional solitary ramble by night; no one was ever allowed to enter his dreary sanctum, his meals being left for him outside the door; and his long days were spent looking through his attic window on the moving panorama of the Thames.

While Sir Henry Delves Broughton was sitting at his attic window a man infinitely richer was walking the streets of St. Petersburg in the guise of a beggar, pocketing the alms of charitable passers-by, and gleefully carrying back his spoil to his miserable two-storied cottage in one of the city's slums.

That was the only "palace" of the multi-millionaire Solodovnikoff, where he lived among his decrepit sticks of furniture with an old housekeeper. Here he would sit shivering through the cold winter days, too miserly to allow himself a fire or even to brighten the dark house with the light of a solitary candle. For 20 years he was only known to wear one suit, a "thing of shreds and patches," scarcely a vestige of the original cloth remaining. And yet this sordid-living hermit was one of the greatest landowners and railway magnates in all Russia—a man who left behind him a hundred million roubles. Far wealthier than many kings, he led a life from which most peasants would have shrunk.

A few years ago there was no wealthier man in all Paris than M. Colasson, who for a generation had lived as a pauper in two rooms of his magnificent palace in the Rue Galilee. During all this period he never once left his splendid prison, and no one was ever allowed to enter it except his one faithful attendant, who kept him supplied with his daily food of bread and eggs. As in Mr. Dering's case, it was the death of a father that consigned him to his hermit life, so with M. Colasson it was the tragic death by fire of a loved nephew and heir in 1874 that decided him to forswear the world and all its vanities.

Within a few weeks of the death of M. Colasson there died in an attic in a Berlin slum one Herr Schwarz, who was known to and pitied by his neighbors as the poorest of the poor. He sallied out daily into the fashionable quarters, dressed in rags and carrying a sack in which he collected crusts.

He lived alone and died alone, a mere bag of bones—surrounded by riches, for in his room was found £80,000—in gold coins, stored in scores of jars and bottles, and in bank notes, with which his pillow and mattress were stuffed.—Tit-Bits.

Corrected.

A sandwich man who paraded Wall street bore aloft the legend: "Eat your lunch at Stuffem's and Surprise Your Palet."

"There's something wrong with that sign," said a broker to a banker. "What is it?"

"He's got the last word spelt wrong," replied the other. "Pity sign painters can't learn how to spell or consult a dictionary. Hey, there, you with the Surprise! Your palate's spelt wrong—have it fixed up!"

The next day the same sandwich man shuffled along and, sure enough, he had reported the error. The last word of the sign had been carefully scraped out and in its place the word stood proudly forth with an extra "l," thus: "Eat Your Lunch at Stuffem's and Surprise Your Pallet."

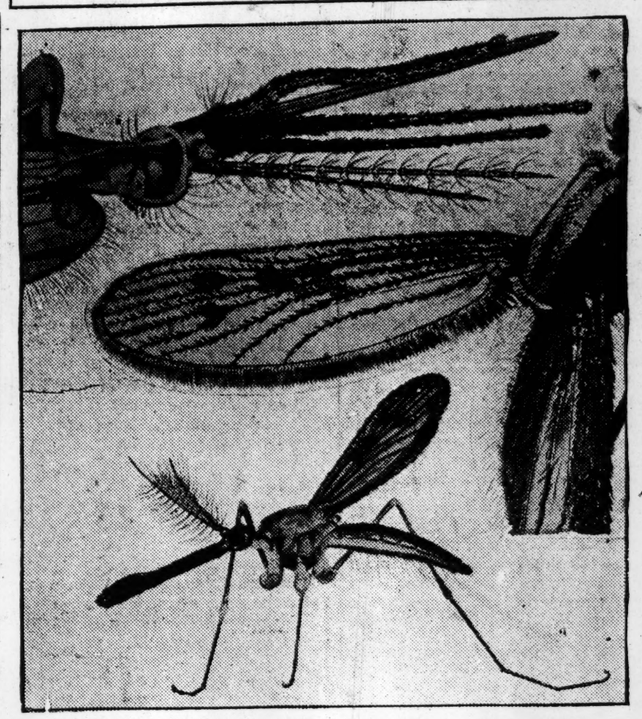
Scientists Hope to Eradicate Diseases by Killing Mosquitoes



EVERYBODY knows that mosquitoes are annoyances, and scientists know that they are a real menace to the health of the public. The fact was established long ago that mosquitoes spread yellow fever, and by destroying the mosquitoes yellow fever was driven from Cuba and from the Panama canal zone. In the north the mosquito spreads malaria, and the way to destroy that baffling disease is to destroy the mosquitoes. In the picture above the top photograph shows the head of the female mosquito, and the wise men who have studied the insect say that it is the female that does the biting. This may be a slander on the gentler sex, but doctors say it is merely a statement of cold scientific fact. In the picture the head is highly magnified and the penetrating needle that injects the malarial virus is plainly shown. The center picture shows a mosquito wing, also highly magnified. The lower picture is what might be called a speaking likeness of the malaria mosquito, the kind that sometimes grows so large that it might be said to be "frying size."

BUILT A KITCHEN CABINET

Handy Man Worked at It Sundays, but Forgot to Measure the Stairway.

He is the meat man in a street grocery. Besides being handy at trimming spare ribs with a safety razor he is also an adept with carpenter's tools. About a year ago he decided to build a kitchen cabinet for his wife. He chose the basement as the place of construction, ordered a lot of lumber and other accessories and went to work.

The only time he had to give to the kitchen cabinet cause was on Sunday, as he had to work early and late during the week. He closed all basement windows tightly in order to muffle all the noise he made with saws and hammers. He even had a set of signals arranged with his wife that she was to stamp on the floor when the minister or some pious friend was passing. Sunday after Sunday he toiled away on the kitchen cabinet, picturing in his mind how pretty and how useful it would be in the kitchen.

Finally the cabinet was finished and the builder asked two or three of the boys at the store to drop over on Sunday morning and help him carry it upstairs. The boys, anxious to see the product of so many days of toil, accepted the invitation and went over. It was a Jim Dandy kitchen cabinet. It was the best ever—even better than the store kind.

"Well, boys, let's hike upstairs with it," said Fritz, the cabinet constructor.

The boys took hold, tilted it and started for the stairway. Fritz groaned. The boys smothered a laugh.

It was nine inches too wide for the stairway.

The cabinet has departed this life via the furnace. It is unlikely that Fritz will build another.

Don't always trust the chronic handshaker. He may have a sand bag up his sleeve.

CLEANS AND POLISHES IRONS

Implement Is Merely Rubbed Over Oiled Pad and Piece of Corrugated Metal.

An effective cleaning and polishing device for sad-irons has been designed by a New Jersey man. It consists of a triangular box in two parts and large enough to permit of the free movement of the iron within its boundaries. In the bottom of one side of the box is a felt pad, which is saturated with oil. On top of this is laid a piece of fabric sufficiently porous to allow of moistening from the lower pad. In the other side of the box is a piece of corrugated metal.

Folds When Not in Use.

To clean an iron the implement is rubbed over the oil-soaked cloth till the rust on it is softened. It is then rubbed over the corrugated metal and the surface cleared of grit as far as the corrugations can do this. The final polishing is done with a dry flannel cloth. The box is made with the two parts hinged so that they can be folded up when it is not in use and will not take up so much room.

Snake-Killing Birds.

In South Africa is to be found the champion snake killer of the bird family. It is known as the secretary-bird.

The name seems an odd one, but the bird received its name from a crest or tuft of plumage rising from the back of its head, which reminds one of a secretary or bookkeeper with a bunch of quills stuck behind his ear.

As a rule it attacks smaller snakes in preference to the very powerful ones, and in doing so uses every precaution against contact with the poisonous fangs or strong cells. It does not attack its prey suddenly, but, after walking round the spot occupied by the reptile, suddenly spreads its wings and gives the reptile a sudden but sharp blow on the head with its very hard and sharp talons. This is done so quickly that the reptile has no chance to resist.—Harper's Weekly.

HARD TIMES FOR DOCTORS

Their Fees Were Small in Babylon and Failure to Cure Meant Torture.

Babylonian surgeons four thousand years ago had not the easy time of their modern colleagues. The French archaeological commission has just discovered there a tablet containing some interesting facts about the Babylonian Bob Sawyer. For all operations "performed with a knife" patients were to pay twelve silver shekels, which is about $3.75 of American money. A broken leg or arm must be set for $2, and teeth were drawn at the uniform rate of seventy-five cents.

All the same, this must have been pretty good pay for the time, because the tablet in question goes on to enumerate the punishment meted out to surgeons who made professional mistakes. These would appeal even less to the modern medical man than the low fees.

When an operation caused the death of a patient the unfortunate surgeon had both his hands cut off; and when he did not cure his patient in reasonably quick time, the tablet tells us that his fee was confiscated by the government. It does not mention what was considered a reasonable time for healing.

HIS MARKSMANSHIP IS GOOD

Night Watchman at the Ostrich Farm Thinks He Sees Burglars at the Window.

Sitting alone in the office of the Bentley ostrich farm at Melrose the other night, A. Walters, night watchman, looked up from his paper and was startled to see two faces peering at him through a window.

"Burglars!" he gasped, and drew his revolver. He sent two shots through the window, and then pursued two fleeing forms into the darkness outside, firing as he ran. His ammunition exhausted, he hastened back to the office and telephoned to the police station.

"I've just shot a burglar," he said. "Two of them tried to break into the office and I chased them. I killed one, and the other owes his life to the fact that I had no more bullets. Come quick. You may catch him before he gets away."

A posse surrounded the big farm. Triumphantly Walters led the sergeant to where a dark form lay huddled in a heap on the ground, a testimonial as to his marksmanship.

A policeman bent over the form. "Why, it's an ostrich!" he exclaimed. —San Francisco Chonicle.

ANCIENT QUARREL IS OVER

Two Old Sardinian Families Publicly End Feud That Had Lasted for Centuries.

A ceremony the like of which had not been seen for centuries has just taken place in Sardinia, the cradle of the Italian vendetta. It was a solemn public reconciliation of two ancient families, the Orecchioni and the Cardi, who had been in feud since the middle ages.

A dispute over a question of family honor between these widely ramified houses has led to countless acts of vengeance and those who shirked fighting had to take refuge abroad.

In 1844 a reconciliation committee was formed by the bishops of Tempio and Ozieri, the prefect and the commander of the carabinieri and many other notables of the island, but it effected nothing.

It may be that even the Italian vendetta is influenced by modern notions; at all events a solemn reconciliation of the families has been effected before the bishops in the cathedral of Santa Teresa. The present heads of the two families, Advocate Orecchioni and Cavaliere Cardi, publicly embraced amid cheers from thousands of Sardinian throats.

From all parts of the island came congratulatory messages. To break this peace would be in the eyes of the people an act of sacrilege.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

EXTENSION GRANTED.

Railroads Have Until January 1, 1912, to Publish Rates.

Washington, D. C., June 14.—The Interstate Commerce Commission to-day granted to all railroads an extension of time from August 1 next to January 1, 1912, in which to publish their rates complying with the commission's requirement that where a commodity rate has been fixed between points of production and points of consumption, the same concession shall on application be granted to intermediate points. The railroads had contended in these cases that the intermediate points, being neither producing nor consuming points, were not entitled to the rate, but the commission held otherwise under the long and short-haul clause.

Feet Tired---
So Tired?

TIZ Makes Sick Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

TIZ acts at once and makes tired, aching, swollen feet remarkably fresh and sore proof.

It's the sure remedy, you know, for everything that gets the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for sweaty, bad-smelling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too.

"For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally used." A. F. Dreutzer, Chicago.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

HINTS FOR THE COOK

RIGHT AND WRONG WAYS OF PREPARING MEAT.

"Simmering" and "Boiling" Are Different Things—Steaming Excellent for Cooking Large Joints—Braising Pan Useful.

The ordinary housewife rarely understands the meaning of the words "boil" and "simmer." Water boils at sea level at 212 degrees Fahrenheit; at high altitudes it boils at lower temperature. We find by experience that meat becomes tender more quickly at simmering point—a temperature of 180 degrees—than when it is boiled at 212 degrees. Simmering is when the bubbles form on the bottom of the vessel, safely pass through the water and rupture at the top, says the Christian Science Monitor. This is not the boiling motion. To have a piece of boiled meat rare, juicy and tasty the outside must be thoroughly sealed, the same as in baking. To do this, put the meat into boiling water, bring quickly to the boiling point, boil for 20 minutes, then push the kettle back where the meat will simmer 15 minutes to each pound. If the meat is to be served rare 12 minutes will be long enough; on the other hand, if it is to be well done, cook it 20 minutes to the pound. Even when well done it should be juicy, tender and palatable.

Boiled meats are more easily digested than baked meats, even when baked meats are carefully cooked. Broiled meats are preferable to those cooked in a dry pan, and dry-panned meats are far superior to those fried; in fact, fried meats have no place at a well-regulated table.

Steaming is an admirable method of cooking tough meats, or large joints like a leg of mutton or a ham. This may be done in a common boiler, using sufficient water to create a good volume of steam. Place the meat in the boiler, on a rack, above the water. As the water evaporates replace it with boiling water. Do not check the boiling or you reduce the heat and soften the surface of the meat.

Braising is a cross between baking and boiling. This method is largely used for tough meats. A braising pan is a baking pan with a tight-fitting cover. These pans are sold under the astonishing name of "roasting pans;" roasting means to cook before a fire; you cannot roast in a covered pan. These pans are, notwithstanding their illogical name, admirable utensils in which to cook fricandeau of veal, beef a la mode, leg of mutton, braised beef, or an old turkey or fowl. Place the meat in the pan and partly fill the pan with boiling stock or water; add, if you like, a sliced onion, a bay leaf and a little chopped celery. Cover the pan, stand in a very hot oven and bake for three or four hours, according to the size and the kind of meat. A leg of mutton will require two; beef a la mode four, and fricandeau of veal three hours. Veal, to be at all edible, must be very well cooked.

Nut Bread.

Beat up one egg and beat into it one-quarter of a cupful of sugar; add one teaspoonful of salt and two cupfuls of milk. Mix four teaspoonfuls of baking powder with four cupfuls of flour and sift this into the other ingredients, adding at the same time one cupful of chopped nuts. Stir these all together until smooth and then make into two loaves; let them rise in pans for 20 minutes and then bake for 20 minutes in a hot oven.—Harper's Bazar.

Second Serving.

Instead of serving roast beef on its second appearance cold, prepare it as follows: Lay the slices of cold beef in a dressing made of a saltspoonful of white pepper, twice as much salt, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and three tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Mix well and pour over the beef. Leave for an hour, then drain each slice, dip into a thick fritter batter and fry in deep fat to a golden brown. Serve very hot.

Little Economy.

There is nothing so small that you cannot save money on it. Make your pillow cases, for instance, of tubing. Then when they begin to get thin in the middle, you can rip the closed end and sew them again so that the creased edge of the pillow case will be now the middle of the flat side. The worn places are thus brought to the outer edge, where there is practically no wear upon them.

Flour Starch.

Mix first with cold water the flour. Then pour on gradually boiling water and boil till clear. Strain through cloth. Add bluing. For table linen add few tablespoons to rinse water. Clothes keep stiff longer and more satisfactory than by using regular starch.

Snicker Doodles.

Two cups of sugar, two eggs, cup sweet milk, six tablespoonfuls melted lard, cup chopped raisins, one quart flour, tablespoonful of cream tartar, half teaspoonful of soda; flavor to taste. Drop with teaspoon on greased pan and bake in hot oven.

Cutting Butter.

To cut brick butter for table use, tear strip of oiled paper wrapping, place on butter the desired thickness, and cut through. Butter in squares does not break or stick to the knife.

AMERICAN ARTISTS ASKED TO SUBMIT MONUMENT DESIGNS

Washington, June 14.—In carrying out the special act introduced by Senator Overman and passed at the last session of Congress, General Bixy, chief of engineers of the army, has made arrangements for the erection of a monument to cost $30,000 at Guilford Battle Ground, N. C.

The monument will commemorate the splendid victory won by the American troops under General Nathaniel Green during the war of the revolution. American artists are being invited to submit models for the monument. Special prizes of $300, $250 and $200 will be paid the artists submitting the three most meritorious designs.

The construction of the monument will be in charge of Captain Earl I. Brown of the corps of engineers stationed at Wilmington. Designs are to be submitted to Captain Brown not later than September 15, next. The final selection of the design to be followed in the work of construction will be approved by the Secretary of War.

STOCKINGS FOR LITTLE ONES

New Design Will Prove Boon for Worried Mothers of Healthy, Romping Youngsters.

When the summer comes and the active boys and girls, filled with the zest of life, are rolling hoops, jumping rope and playing ball, garters do get broken and mothers are in despair not only because of this, but because of the big holes that the catches sometimes tear in little stockings.

Now, however, a novel kind of hosiery has been put on the market for the youngster, obviating all difficulties of this kind.

These are nothing more or less than stockings which reach all the way to the little waists, having a straight piece back and front, which is of elastic material, with buttonholes which button right onto the little underwaists.

Such hosiery is not only practical, but prevents all possibility of the garter showing beneath small skirts or bloomers, and also serves to keep the underwaist in place.

The stockings come in brown and black and white.

Coats for Summer.

White is to be fashionable this summer, and nothing is prettier than a white cloak. White satin evening cloaks faced with black are smart, but not practical as compared with the same style of coat in light-weight cloth. These coats should be cut on some loose model, and can be trimmed or plain. The sailor collar and revers of velvet covered with heavy lace are effective, but they are equally effective of plain velvet, and velvet for the moment seems more in favor than satin as trimming. Heavy embroidery and braiding around the bottom of the coats, with the same trimming repeated on the wide turned-back cuffs and sailor collar, make the garment most elaborate. Sometimes the revers are faced with satin, not velvet, and this obviates the too heavy effect of so much braiding and embroidery, which always looks stiff.—Harper's Bazar.

Making Pipings.

As pipings are so fashionable and form a part of the finish of almost every gown, it is well to know how they should be made. For a quarter of an inch piping cut the material into bias strips an inch and a quarter wide, and for wider pipings increase the width accordingly. Fold these strips through the center lengthwise and baste close to the fold.

Under the part to be piped lay the folded strip, allowing a quarter of an inch to show, and three-quarters of an inch for the seam. After the piping is basted in place, stitch it as close to the edge as possible.

When a narrower piping is wanted the goods is cut accordingly; but be sure to see that there is a good three-eighths of an inch allowed for the seam.

Easily Restored.

Camel's hair and red sable brushes that have gotten out of shape or curled can be restored to their proper form by dipping first into hot and then into cold water.

HORNETS LOST TO PATRIOTS IN HARD FOUGHT CONTEST

Score in Contest at Charlotte Yesterday Was Four to Nothing—Morrisey in Fine Shape And Allowed But Four Scattered Hits.

Charlotte, June 14.—Greensboro won from Charlotte by the score of four to nothing this afternoon in a fast and snappy game of ball, the eighth being excepted. The first seven innings were played in ten minutes each. The game was featured by the hitting of Doyle and Stewart, and the base running of Stewart and the fielding of Agnew and Corwin. The game was lost on errors of the local short.

Morrisey was on the mound for the visitors and he pitched fine ball. Four scattered hits were allowed and the Hornets never had the least chance to score. Scheesley did the twirling for the Hornets and pitched fine ball with the exception of the eighth.

In the sixth a single, an error, a base on balls and a sacrifice fly brought in one run. In the eighth singles by Fuller, Doak, Corwin, Lowman and Stewart netted three runs for the Patriots.

CASHION'S UNLUCKY SIXTH GAVE GAME TO CLANCY'S TWINS

Winston-Salem, June 14.—Cashion had a bad sixth inning this afternoon in which 14 men faced him, ten of whom scored, and the Twins had no trouble in taking the first game 12 to 4. Howard was on the mound for the locals for the first time and showed up well, allowing seven hits and striking out seven men. In addition to this he got a pretty double that scored two men.

The hitting was not so terrific, it was the inability of Cashion to control his fast ones that caused damage. The eleven hits of the locals were clean and some of them for extra bases, but when Cashion could find the plate there was nothing doing. In the fifth inning he fanned three men in order, only to go up in the next frame. Nothing spectacular happened in the field, but Edwards caught his prettiest game of the season.

SPARTANS DEFEAT ELECTRICIANS BY SCORE OF 8 TO 3

Anderson, S. C., June 14.—Good fielding by the Spartans, errors by the locals and excellent base running by the visitors gave them the victory 8 to 3. Four hits, three errors and one base on balls yielded six runs in the sixth inning. Manager Laval's home run over the fence in the first was a feature. The locals could not connect with Hill at opportune moments, though each pitcher was hit rather freely.

DIAMOND DUST

Where They Play Today.

Greensboro at Charlotte.
Greenville at Winston.
Spartanburg at Anderson.

The Deacon came back.

Just as soon win from Charlotte as anybody else.

The Twins are so near we can hear them blowing and puffing just at the rear.

Time for the Charlotte Chronicle dopester to write a little more verse on what the "Deacon" has done for them.

Special train to the Twin City Saturday leaving here at 1:45 and fare for round trip is $1.00; knee pants boys, 50 cents.

Tony Walters will be on the mound today. He always could beat the Charlotte team, barring accidents, of course.

Excursion for the Twin City will leave hereat 1.45, and returning will leave Winston at 8 o'clock. The ladies are invited to go over.

Doyle and Stewart had on their batting clothes yesterday, and others on the team got hits at an opportune time.

Really wasn't any question about the game with the Deacon in such good form but Doyle decided not to take any chances in the ninth.

Patriot pitchers have twirled several shut out games this season, but the Greensboro team has not been shut out a single time this year.

Believe the followers of Doyle did give the hammer-toters of the league a real exhibition of the national game, just as we predicted.

Any player who in a regular league game bats the ball against the "Bull of Durham," towering so magnificently in right field, will get $50 in cold cash.

Any player knocking a home run on the Greensboro diamond will be immediately presented with a certificate by the scorer entitling him to 72 five-cent packages of Bull Durham smoking tobacco, when the certificate is presented to J. W. Jones & Co., of this city.

Going to Indianapolis.

Washington, D. C., June 14.—In declining an invitation to speak at Baltimore July 4 President Taft today told Senator Rayner, of Maryland, that he had decided definitely to go to Indianapolis on that day.

Official announcement of the latest acquisition was made today by President George M. Reynolds.

The total assets of the bank are $265,000,000. The total deposits of the Consolidated Bank reach $223,270,200. LITTLE GIRL A BIG THIEF.

Lots of Loot Found After her Various Visits.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 14.—Seven silk dresses, a savings bank with considerable money in it, two pocketbooks, one containing $3 and the other $1.50; two umbrellas, two white parasols, a red sweater, three pairs of silk stockings, three rings, five stickpins, a gold-handled umbrella and a shirtwaist, the loot of an 8-year-old girl thief, were recovered this morning by Chief of Police Killeen, of Luzerne, near here.

The child is Anna Garry, whom Chief Killeen arrested this morning, and who confessed, after an hour of questioning, that she had robbed six houses during the last week, and had hidden her plunder under several porches, one at her own house and the others near by.

She had sneaked into the houses when the people were out or were occupied in the front or back. The child was held while the police make a further examination.

REPEATS HIS STORY.

Warriner Says That Cooke Admitted Being Embezzler.

Cincinnati, O., June 14.—Charles L. Warriner, confessed defaulter of $643,000 from the Big Four Railroad, now serving a six-year sentence in the Ohio penitentiary, reiterated on the witness stand today in the trial of Edgar S. Cooke, charged with embezzlement of $24.000 from the same company, that Cooke had admitted that he was an embezzler.

Warriner admitted under cross-examination that he was convicted for defaulting only to the extent of $5,000, despite the fact that he confessed to a defalcation of $643,000.

He reiterated that part of his confession that dealt with Mrs. Jeannette Stewart Ford, the "woman in the case," stating that he had paid Mrs. Ford's bills from time to time.

The prosecution received somewhat of a blow early in the day when Judge Hunt ruled out the testimony of clerks of the Big Four Railroad as to the contents of the cash books of the road that have been destroyed.

RUSSIANS LIKE OUR SHIPS.

Visit of Fleet to Cronstadt Occasion of Unusual Interest.

Cronstandt, June 14.—Russians, who are generally apathetic in such matters, are showing uncommon intterest in the American battleships now anchored here. The limited accommodations of Cronstandt are over-crowded, and extra steamers have been put in commission to carry the visitors to our ships.

Rear Admiral Badger, commanding the Second Division of the United States Atlantic fleet, and his officers, were guests of honor at a banquet this evening, where toasts to President Taft and the Russian Emperor and to the respective countries and navies were drunk. Admiral Badger expressed hearty thanks for the cordial welcome which the battleships had received.

WILSON STAYS DOCKED

Acting Governor Still Holding On to Salary.

Trenton, N. J., June 14.—The "docking" of Governor Wilson, from whose salary $800 was taken on account of his absence for a month in the West, is apparently settled and the Governor remains "docked." The check was sent by the State Comptroller to Acting Governor Ackerman, who, as President of the Senate, became the Executive of the State. Whether or not Senator Ackerman has turned the check over to Governor Wilson is not known and neither will talk of it.

There is one case on record in which the acting Governor gave his salary check to the absentee Governor, and many thought that that as Ackerman is wealthy and Wilson is only in modest circumstances this incident would be repeated. It is understood here, however, that this transfer has not occurred in this case.

WILL BE TRANSFERRED.

Russia's Minister to Pekin Going to European Post.

St. Petersburg, June 14.—The transfer of J. J. Korostovetz, Russian minister to China, is contemplated. M. Kazakoff, head of the Far Eastern Department of the Foreign Office, may be appointed to the Pekin post. A final decision will not be reached before a month of six weeks.

Russo-Chinese relations are the cause of much concern to the Foreign Office, particularly in view of the impending revision of the Russo-Chinese treaty of 1881, the conflicting interpretations of which recently resulted in a diplomatic crisis. Unless renewed the treaty will expire in August.

FOREMAST IS SHIPPED.

Part of Old Maine En Route to Governor's Island.

Havana, June 14.—The steel foremast of the old battleship Maine, which weighs about ten tons, was shipped aboard the Ward Line steamer Bayamo today. It probably will be taken to Governor's Island, N. Y.

The Cuban authorities have made preparations to receive all bodies as fast as they are recovered. They will be taken to Habana fortress, where they will be placed in coffins and remain under military guard until the exploration of the wreck has been completed. The bodies then will be removed to the collier Leonidas for transfer north.

"Two and two make four," said the ready-made philosopher.

"Sometimes," replied Colonel Stillwell, of Kentucky. "And then again they merely make a pair of deuces."—Washington Star.
